

OUTSIDE THE HOTEL

In the end
it's always tragedy.

We're haunted by loss
or the hope

of something to happen
that never will.

But the dance we do
on the silver-blue lawn

outside the hotel
means everything

in those hours of promise
before the dawn.

KIRBY WRIGHT